

Seminar and Workshop on Multinational Clinical Trials for Vaccine Development Targeting Priority Infectious Diseases

Free of charge

Mitsubishi Research Institute, Inc.(MRI) will hold seminars and training sessions for individuals involved in vaccine development as part of the MHLW's "Survey and Development Project on Vaccine Development Systems for Priority Infectious Diseases." This project aims to establish a framework enabling rapid multinational clinical trials in emergencies by identifying clinical trial environments in Southeast Asian countries during peacetime and supporting the development of relationships with research and development institutions. The upcoming seminars and workshops will feature presentations by government officials and Key Opinion Leaders (KOLs) from Japan and the relevant countries, introducing the clinical trial environment for infectious disease vaccines in Indonesia and Thailand*. Participants will also engage in discussions with Japanese vaccine development stakeholders.

*Similar seminars and workshops targeting Thailand and the Indonesia were held in November 2025.
